

A woman anthropologist in the Middle East -

Politics, religion, and everyday life

Please Join Us to Hear
Dr. Kim Shively, Kutztown University
Monday November 17, 2008, 7-8 pm
Boehm Science Building Room 145

Our religious beliefs shape many of our everyday living experiences. Understanding how people from other cultures see the world differently is essential to building understanding between peoples. Dr. Kim Shively's travels in Turkey aim to uncover the relationships between Islam and secular politics, as well as issues related to the education of girls, alternative religious education, and institutional responses to domestic violence there.

Dr. Shively will share her stories of her adventures as an anthropologist working in the Middle East!
Everyone is welcome!
